

TAJ KUMARAKOM RESORT & SPA

Taj - Kumarakom Resort & Spab has a 140 year old story to tell. The natural beauty of the area inspired English Missionary Henry Baker, to build a charming colonial bungalow in the late 19th century. Often called the little jewel of Kumarakom, it still maintains the beauty of its rustic surroundings on the banks of Vembanad Lake. Explore the garden retreat where guests have been very successful at doing absolutely nothing. Now there's a nice new buzz all over. In the renewed heritage rooms, charming cottages and luxury villas. In the nouvelle restaurant, the refurbished bar, and the spa where you'll go Ah! The Chef remains as eager to wow you with specially designed meals.

Soak in the space that spreads over acres of style. Drive in enjoying backseat surprises (we're not revealing here). The short drive from the airport and the railway station will be a breeze for sure, by Taj delight moments all the way.

Feel the Taj vibe as you find little surprises delighting you all the way during your stay. Where fun lovers come again and again for a fun retreat. The resort is 95 kms (2 Hours) from Cochin airport and 17 km (30 mins) from Kottayam railway station. It is a comfortable 5 hrs drive from Trivandrum airport.

DIYA LIGHTING

A Diya, is an oil lamp used in India and Nepal, usually made from clay, with a cotton wick dipped in ghee or oils. Clay diyas are often used temporarily as lighting for special occasions, while diyas made of brass are permanent fixtures in homes and temples. Diyas are native to India and Nepal often used in Hindu, Sikh, Jain and Zoroastrian religious festivals such as Diwali^[2] or the Kushti ceremony. A similar lamp called a butter lamp is used in Tibetan Buddhist offerings as well. Diyas, also known as deepam in Tamil Nadu, can be lighted, especially during the Karthikai Deepa

TRADITIONAL CULTURAL PERFORMANCE

Festivals in Kerala showcase religious traditions of the state, each having a remarkable significance. The festivals enable the local people and those coming from different parts of the country to participate in them, offering an amazing opportunity to socialize and represent their traditional art forms that are a crucial part of the uniqueness of the state. The conventional rituals of the festivals are followed and the streets of the state are filled with vibrant dance and music performances. It is the perfect time to experience the true culture and uniqueness of the
